Affinity Groups: The KMHA Board encourages all its members to help us in creating affinity relationships to enhance the activities of the organization. These relationships can be organized according to profession (i.e. curators, registrars, educators, administrators) or subject matter (i.e. art museums, genealogy, local history, military history). Please indicate what type of affinity relationships you'd be interested in participating in, including those not listed above: _____

Would you be interested in being a point of contact for an affinity group? Y or N

Benefits Description

Institution: Institutional membership ensures your institution the opportunity to create a custom profile on the KMHA website and provide a link from the KMHA site to your institution's website. Your institution will also receive all publications, reduced fees to KMHA sponsored workshops, seminars and the annual meeting and a discount on archival supplies through Light Impressions, University Products, Metal Edge and Gaylord. Your staff and volunteers also get a 25% discount off the price of an individual membership.

Individual: Individual members receive all publications of the organization as well as reduced rates to all KMHA sponsored workshops, seminars and the annual meeting

Contributing: Contributing members receive all the benefits of individual membership as well as special recognition in the KMHA annual report.

Patron: Patron membership entitles an individual or institution the same rights and privileges as its respective membership category plus recognition in the annual report.

Corporate: Corporate members receive the same benefits as institutional members. Corporate members also will have the opportunity to advertise on the KMHA website or in KMHA publications at reduced rates and also receive a discounted rate on vendor space at the annual meeting.

Student: College and University students can join KMHA at a reduced rate and receive the same benefits as individual members.

Affinity Groups: KMHA affinity groups are self-sufficient (manage their own funds, have their own dues,) but will receive the full support of KMHA board and staff in the promotion of their programming and services. Affinity groups will be called upon to submit ideas for workshops, annual meeting sessions, and report to the board annually.
